RISK ASSESSMENT

In my counselling service, I strive to provide a safe and supportive environment for my clients, when offering online sessions. I have conducted a comprehensive risk assessment to ensure that I can deliver my services effectively while addressing any potential risks.

Here are some of the measures I have implemented:

Confidentiality

I have taken steps to ensure the privacy and confidentiality of my clients. I have designated a private and secure area within my home where counselling sessions will be conducted. I maintain strict confidentiality and employ secure methods for storing and handling client records and information.

Technology and data security

I use secure and encrypted platforms for conducting online counselling sessions. My computer systems are equipped with up-to-date antivirus software and firewalls to protect client information. I ensure that all electronic communications and data transmission are secure and compliant with applicable privacy regulations.

Please be aware that if you are using or in proximity to a device such as an iPhone/Android phone or smart watch during our sessions, I cannot guarantee that the devices will not be listening, putting complete confidentiality at risk. I cannot guarantee that your devices will not be listening and gathering data on topics we discuss. I will not have any of my own devices in the room during our sessions.

Emergency preparedness

I have established emergency procedures in case of unforeseen circumstances or emergencies during a counselling session. This includes having contact information readily available for emergency services and maintaining a clear line of communication with clients during sessions.

Professional development and support

I continuously engage in ongoing professional development to enhance my skills and knowledge in providing online-based counselling. I actively seek supervision and consultation to ensure the highest quality of care and address any challenges that may arise.

If you have any questions or require further information about my risk assessment or safety measures, please feel free to discuss them with me. Your well-being and security are of utmost importance to me, and I am committed to providing a professional, friendly, and safe counselling service.
